COLOUR GUIDE

1	Dark blue	The whole background, and the corner sections inside the small flag
2	Red	The crosses inside the small flag, and all four stars
3	White	The bands around the red crosses, and the border around each star

DID YOU KNOW?

The four red stars are the Southern Cross, a constellation you can only see from the southern half of the world.

It's easy to mix up with Australia's flag. New Zealand has four red stars with white borders; Australia has six white stars, including a big one below the Union Jack.

New Zealand voted on whether to change this flag in 2015 and 2016 — after two referendums, people chose to keep it.

New Zealand's Māori name is Aotearoa, which is often translated as "land of the long white cloud".
