DID YOU KNOW?

The Union Jack is three flags in one: the red cross of St George (England), the white diagonal cross of St Andrew (Scotland) and the red diagonal cross of St Patrick (Ireland).

Wales isn't in the flag. When the first Union flag was made in 1606, Wales was already joined with England.

The flag is not symmetrical. Next to the pole, the wide white stripe sits above the red one at the top. Flying it the other way up is considered wrong.

Look for the Union Jack in the corner of other flags too: Australia, New Zealand, Fiji and Tuvalu all include it.
